I hope this will be helpful for you. Degradation of immobilised protein using the approach of organic solvent-assisted grinding. A rapid, simple, green and efficient process of the recovery of immobilised protein (immobilised casein) from insoluble products produced by organic solvent-assisted grinding of whole protein-containing glutaraldehyde immobilised product, is reported. It was carried out by two sequential liquid-liquid extractions with acetone-methanol for the first step and aqueous acid solution for the second step. In this process, acetone-methanol was used as a solvent, which precipitated proteins in the form of soluble proteins and maintained their activity. The maximum value of yield was obtained to be 90.40% for the protein from whole cow milk (moisture 12.6%) through the treatment of whole cow milk and acetone-methanol (1:3, w/w) at 55 degrees C. A suitable condition (21 degrees C) for the solid-liquid extraction was found by using aqueous acetone-methanol (1:3, v/v) to perform two sequential liquid-liquid extractions. Further evaluation of enzyme activity was carried out by the use of the immobilised protein recovered from the solids at 21 degrees C.Q: Why don't I see the questions that were shown as 'active' in the activity feed in the right sidebar? When looking at 'activity' in the right sidebar of a Stack Overflow page, this morning I saw the question I had asked yesterday (as I had been up all night) twice, once when looking at 'activity' and once when looking at 'favorites'. Now, I'm not complaining - I still have the question shown - but I don't understand why it's there twice. This happens all the time, and I'm guessing I'm not alone. A: Not exactly sure why you're seeing it twice, but we've done an update and fixed that. The queries now remove all inactive posts. CNS component of genetically-determined emotional behavior: the analysis of cerebellar physiology. Emotions are due to a complex set of cognitive, autonomic, and motoric activities, which are regulated by the cortico-striato-limbic circuits. It has been suggested that the cerebellum has a role in processing emotionally-based motoric responses (through
